Any animal sheltered/impounded by Animal Services when the owner is known to Animal Services to be incapacitated shall be held for seven (7) days before being deemed abandoned. After the expiration of the seven (7) days, the animal shall be deemed abandoned and becomes the property of Animal Services and Animal Services may place the animal for adoption or transport the animal to an adoption agency or otherwise humanely dispose of the animal.

Animals claimed within the above-mentioned time periods shall be returned to the owner or authorized representative, only after the owner or authorized representative has provided proof of rabies inoculation (if required) and paid all required fees, including, but not limited to, the costs of all rabies and medical treatment.

If in the Director's sole discretion, they determine that returning any impounded animal would pose an unnecessary risk to the health, morals, comfort, safety, or welfare to either the animal or the community, then the animal cannot be reclaimed without a valid court order, or until at the Director's sole discretion, the situation creating the unnecessary risk has been abated. If the Director determines that returning the animal would pose an unnecessary risk to the health, morals, comfort, safety, or welfare to either the animal or the community, and the owner is unwilling to surrender the animal, then the animal may remain impounded for enough time as reasonably necessary for the city to timely petition any court of competent jurisdiction under, but not limited to, Ala.
